

Personal learning environments (Workshop)

Graham Attwell

Researcher and developer, Pontydysgu, Wales, UK

Graham Attwell will facilitate a workshop, helping participants visualise their own Personal Learning Environments and Personal Learning Networks. Participants will be encouraged to think about how they learn what technologies they use in their learning, what they like about online social and learning technologies and what they don't like. Participants will be encouraged to share their experiences and (hopefully) to learn from each other.

Graham Attwell is a researcher and developer working for a small company, Pontydysgu based in Wales, UK. He has previously worked as a youth worker and trainer. His interests include the training of trainers, the development of new pedagogies for learning with technology, informal learning and careers advice guidance and counselling. He likes making multi-media, especially internet radio shows.
