

Online counseling for youth workers and young people

Anni Marquard

In the workshop we will show a case with digital counseling for vulnerable youngsters. We will discuss how digital counseling is successful in Denmark to improve the health of young people. As a participant, you will help a youngster to focus on the challenges you see in the effort, and together we will work on some of the many different future perspectives in digital consulting that may also spread to your country.

The workshop will vary between presentation and shared discussion. Participants will be invited to imagine themselves in the future's digital youth efforts with digital counseling.

Anni Marquard is the originator of Centre for Digital Youth Care (CDYC) and has been running CDYC since its establishment in 2004. Her educational background is within pedagogy, new media, project management and marketing. Anni has worked with children, teenagers and the new media as well as with online counselling since 1997 at Children's Welfare, Youth Welfare and YMCAs Social Work.